Limited Issue 2011 Fuel Reopener

DIRECT TESTIMONY OF JEFF KNITTER ON BEHALF OF WISCONSIN ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY

Q. Please state your name and title.

A. My name is Jeff Knitter. I am the Manager – Special Projects in Wisconsin Electric Power Company's Wholesale Energy and Fuels Department.

Q. Have you previously testified before the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin?

A. Yes, most recently in the Edgewater 5 SCR docket (05-CE-137). I have also testified in the Elm Road Generating Station and Port Washington Generating Station CPCN dockets and have recently submitted testimony in the Rothschild Biomass Cogeneration Facility docket (6630-CE-305).

Q. What is the purpose of your testimony in this proceeding?

A. In Wisconsin Electric's most recent general rate case, Docket No. 05-UR-104, which established rates for test year 2010, the Commission in its Final Decision, dated December 18, 2009, (2009 Final Decision) authorized the Company to reopen the docket in 2010 to review updated 2011 fuel costs. The Company has filed an application to accomplish the authorized update and my testimony is in support of that application. More specifically, I will indicate what we now expect our aggregate 2011 fuel costs to be and I will indicate by

Sample 9

Category No. 5: Impacts of Transmission Congestion

Q. How much of the change in projected 2011 fuel costs is accounted for by updated projections of congestion on the transmission system?

A. This category results in an increase of about $19.5M from the levels established in the 2010 Interim Decision.

Q. Please describe this in more detail.

A. The Company is experiencing increased congestion of the transmission system at locations south of Pleasant Prairie and south of Lake Michigan, which results in the depression of prices (LMPs) at Pleasant Prairie, Oak Creek and Elm Road and corresponding reduced utilization of these facilities, particularly during lower priced, off-peak periods. See Exhibit 1.1 (JEK). The impacts of these two phenomena are to reduce generator margin and thereby increase monitored fuel costs. This congestion was initially observed by the Company in late-2008, and has been steadily increasing with time. The Company has been working with MISO, PJM and other stakeholders in studying possible solutions to the congestion and with ATC in similar studies. (Possible "quicker to implement" solutions are being identified in these studies and are likely to be implemented in several years, with "longer to implement" solutions taking perhaps 5 or more years to license and install.)

Q. How did you model the increased transmission system congestion?

A. Transmission limits in PROMOD are initially populated with data from Ventyx (the PROMOD vendor). Next, we added transmission limits used by MISO in their PROMOD modeling. About 300 event file items (new lines, revised flowgate limits and other transmission topology changes) were added. We benchmarked the change by comparing our PROMOD constrained flowgate list with actual constrained flowgates and MISO's

Sample 9

PROMOD constrained flowgate list (Exhibit 1.2 (JEK)). Our event file captured 11 of the top 20 actual binding constraints, on par with MISO's event file performance.

Category No. 6: Other Changes in Monitored Fuel Costs

Q. How much of the change in projected 2011 fuel costs is accounted for by other changes in monitored fuel costs?

A. Other changes to monitored fuel costs amount to a decrease of $17.8M in monitored fuel costs from those levels established in the 2010 Interim Decision. This category includes the following items:

- Differences in 2011 planned outage schedule compared to 2010 – decrease of $6.1M,
- Updated August 27, 2010 NYMEX forecasts for 2011 gas and oil – decrease of $6.1M,
- Miscellaneous changes – decrease of $2.5M and
- Risk Management costs – decrease of $3.1M

Q. Please describe the miscellaneous changes which, altogether, decrease 2011 monitored fuel costs by $2.5 million compared to the 2010 Interim Decision amount.

A. Changes to miscellaneous items include:

- The Elm Road and Port Washington generating facilities use auxiliary boilers for unit startup, building heating, and a number of other applications. The 2010 Interim Decision included projections of auxiliary boiler operation and corresponding gas use and cost. Based on updated projections of unit operation and gas prices at these facilities, 2011 monitored fuel costs are projected to decrease by $0.1M.
- The 2010 Interim Decision included $0.5M for a test burn of alternate coal at the Valley Power Plant. Since the Company has no plans to conduct additional test burns during 2011, monitored fuel costs will decrease by that amount.

UNOPPOSED MOTION OF INTERVENOR 3 TO MODIFY DEADLINE FOR FILING REBUTTAL TESTIMONY

Pursuant to Wis. Admin. Code § PSC 2.23 and sections IV.A.3.b.and IV.G.3. of the Prehearing Conference Memorandum (PSC REF#: 654321), Intervenor 3 (Inte-3) files this unopposed request to modify the deadline for filing rebuttal testimony in the above-captioned proceeding from the current deadline April 10, 2013 at noon to the new proposed deadline of April 12, 2013 at noon. There is good cause to grant this request since Inte-3's rebuttal testimony witness was taken suddenly and violently ill and will be unable to file rebuttal testimony by the current deadline. Inte-3 has conferred with all parties and Commission staff and confirmed that there is no objection to extending the rebuttal testimony deadline to April 12, 2013 at noon. Therefore, Inte-3 respectfully requests that the deadline for filing rebuttal testimony be extended to April 12, 2013 at noon.

Dated this 9th day of April, 2013.

Respectfully submitted,

This order deems PSC REF#s: 178758 & 178845, requests to mark as an exhibit a document that already exists on ERF, as correspondence. The Commission rejects the offer as exhibits EGEAS model run output disks PSC REF#s: 178459 & 178845, because the Commission relies not on the raw data, but on the analysis of parties and Commission staff of that data presented in testimony and exhibits.
